

Hello preschool families,

Looks like the rain is here to stay (for a few more days, at least!). With the rain this week, we used our indoor time to our advantage by painting our classroom t-shirts and working on some thankful art.

Our garden didn't need any watering this week, and everything is continuing to thrive. Our sunflowers even started blooming, despite the rainy and cloudy days.

For Charlie Brown Thanksgiving, each class has been working on thankful art. We are stringing the art up in the hallway as it is completed, please take a look during pick up or drop off time. The students have the most beautiful, funny, and honest responses when asked what they are thankful for.

Our other big project has been class shirts. Each student has been invited to help paint their class logo on a lovely golden San Tan Montessori shirt. The bears, bunnies, and doves are all adorable, and shirts are ready to go home! Please submit $10 to Ms. Icke to take home your stenciled shirt.

I am always looking for tree stumps, branches, tree cookies, acorns, dried leaves, and other outdoor items to use for natural art and play.

Right now, Montessori Services is having their fall promotion. If you place an order for home items, please reference customer code #165000. Our school will earn a 10% credit. While you are shopping, please keep us in mind! Teachers have added some items to a wishlist on the website. Wishlist Link
